

The Centre for Social Justice
9 Westminster Palace Gardens
Artillery Row
London SW1P 1RL

Telephone 020 7340 9650
Website www.centreforsocialjustice.org.uk

Release date:
Release time: Immediate

The logo for The Centre for Social Justice, featuring the text "THE CENTRE FOR SOCIAL JUSTICE" in white, uppercase letters on a dark red background.

OPERATIONAL NOTE – FOR THE ATTENTION OF NEWS EDITORS AND PICTURE DESKS
NOT FOR PUBLICATION

BREAKTHROUGH LONDON REPORT PUBLISHED

Iain Duncan Smith MP and the Centre for Social Justice publish their Breakthrough London report highlighting social problems in the city and proposed solutions.

Mr Duncan Smith will outline the findings of the report at a Press Briefing in Portcullis House, Room R on Monday 14 April 2008 at 10.30am.

All media invited

To arrange an interview with Iain Duncan Smith or for further information on the Centre for Social Justice call Nick Wood on 07889617003.

NOTES TO EDITORS

The Centre for Social Justice is an independent think tank was established by Rt Hon Iain Duncan Smith MP in 2004. The Centre seeks effective solutions to the poverty in Britain.

Breakthrough Britain

In July 2007 the group published Breakthrough Britain. Ending the Costs of Social Breakdown.

Breakthrough Britain identified five pathways to poverty: family breakdown; addiction; economic dependency and worklessness; educational failure, and debt. It also identifies a role for the voluntary sector in their remedy.

Breakthrough Britain presented over 190 policy proposals to reduce the £102bn cost of social breakdown which were submitted to David Cameron on 9 July 2007.

The CSJ presented Breakthrough Manchester on 8 November 2007, Breakthrough Birmingham on 6 December 2007 and Breakthrough Glasgow on 5 February 2008.

All reports are available on www.centreforsocialjustice.org.uk